

Creating the future together

Heating, Cooling & Electronic Engineering. As a global leader in Electrothermics and Electronics, DBK Group is developing customized solutions for automotive industry Worldwide. To strengthen out our Team in Changshu (Jiangsu province), we need a qualified person and this we are looking for a

Laboratory Engineer (m/f)

The Laboratory Engineer verifies the various functionalities and the conformity of the product from the beginning to the end of the development. It guarantees the technical reliability and the safety of the equipment, process and product.

Main Task

- Perform the complete testing process (Contract review/Test preparation/Test realization/Test report) with the best customer service regarding cost/quality/timeline in line with our standards, tools and processes.
- Write detailed test report with the best added value for his internal customers
- Improve continuously his testing processes
- Provide support for the solving of technical issues

Job Responsibilities

- Perform all kind of tests according to the laboratory standards and rules, from contract review to test report
- Ensure a rigorous testing process
- Ensure internal customer satisfaction with relevant test reports according to the test objectives and planning defined in the contract review
- Perform maintenance/calibration of the test equipment and define an investment plan
- Develop technical skills according to the training plan defined by his or her manager
- Write standard test methods/Customer working instructions
- Apply, communicate and ensure the compliance with environmental, safety and security procedures (Site, PG, Group) and good practices in his or her department
- Act immediately in case of any identified risk, to reduce and/or avoid it
- Propose safety improvement in testing processes to the laboratory manager

Education Qualification | Associated Technical Knowledge

- Bachelors degree or Engineer Degree in Mechatronic, Automotive Engineering, Material Engineer with knowledge in PTC
- Bilingual in Chinese & English – German welcome

Personal Skills

- Responsiveness, creativity, flexibility, autonomy, teamwork, readiness to take responsibility, stress resistance
- Microsoft Office + ERP Knowledge

We offer attractive terms of employment and a position with development potential in a very international environment. If you are interested in working at DBK please contact our human resources division via email (bewerbungen@dbk-group.com).